FLORIDA INVESTORS MEET IN NEW YORK

Discuss Means of Insuring Steady Future For State; Industrial Leaders Guests

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Thirty representatives of business and financial houses having great investments in Florida today met at the Metropolitan club and discussed means of insuring a steady future to the resort state.

The nationally known industrial leaders were the guests at luncheon of H. G. Dahlberg, chairman of the executive committee of the national advisory committee of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce.

Questions involving the tax situation in the state, the adverse publicity resulting from the present agricultural situation and the solidifying of investments by non-resident capital were taken up.

A committee was named to devise a program through which those residing outside Florida, but having large interests there, might become helpful in aiding the advancement of the state's property and in increasing its industrial possibilities.

Among those attending the meeting, in addition to Mr. Dahlberg, who is president of the Celotex Company, were William A. Buckner, vice president of the Barron G. Collier Company; Ralph W. Gwin, vice president of the J. C. Penney Company; and Frederick S. Ruth, all members of the committee.

Others were David Shantz, president of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, Daytona Beach; Herman Dann, past president of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, St. Petersburg; Julius M. Burguiere, first vice president of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, West Palm Beach; R. Anderson, representing the Phipps estate, George K. Hoffman, representing the Penny Farms Company, Green Cove Springs, Fla.; C. K. McFadden, Port Everglades Refining Company, Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and New York; Robert L. Nutt, chairman of the board of the Seaboard Air Line, New York; Arthur R. Rule, director of the North American Fruit Exchange, New York; Herman G. Wentgel, passenger traffic manager, Clyde Steamship Company, New York; H. Emerson Evans, Southern Sugar Company, New York; L. P. Mow, Benjamin Moore & Sons, New York; Daniel C. Goodman, Celotex Company, New York.

Also present were Arthur Brisbane, Irving Engel, John B. Pruyne, trustee of the Minto B. Keith estate; Natl. Wagoner, Eldridge & Company, all of New York; Clement S. Tucker, vice president of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, Jacksonville and Baltimore, and Austin Keough, Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation and Public Theaters Corporation, New York.

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATION BEING ADOPTED BY GLADES MERCHANTS

The Kelvinator Corporation announces orders and shipments for the month of August this year nearly forty per cent over and above those for August last year, according to F. J. McElhinis, distributor for the Glades.

This augments the previous sales gains during 1920 and goes a long way toward a record sales year in the refrigerator industry, especially because of the fact that increases in orders and shipments usually precede the heavy sales season of May and June, and is evidence of the fact that the business is less seasonal and more steady in its demands than in former years.

September is the month of the national food preservation campaign, when the continued use of refrigeration for perishable foods is brought to the public mind through great national advertising programs. This, together with the late warm summer weather, has done much to continue the refrigerator selling season.

Recent installations of Kelvinator equipment in the Glades section during the past month include Howard Sharp at Canal Point, H. L. Douglas, C. E. Riedel, K. A. Alston, H. Boree and L. C. Betner at Belle Glade, V. C. Dutton at South Bay and Dick C. Miller at Clewiston.

OKEECHOBEE CROPS

Okeechobee News.
A careful census made of fall crops to be planted in Okeechobee county, irrespective of government loans, shows that there is now planted or planned to plant 1,108 acres to winter wheat in Okeechobee county this fall, according to the following:

The Brown Company has 70,000 acres of Everglades land; that is equal to 1,700 tracts of 40 acres each, capable of subsisting a population of 10,000 people, but thanks to the existence of millions of acres of Everglades lands, this possible population is not excluded.

The Southern Sugar Company will have 35,000 acres in growing sugar cane this winter; it can double and triple its acreage and there will still be plenty of land for more peanut plantations and other plantations and tens of thousands of small farmers.

The existence of this vast expanse of Everglades lands invites development and settlement; were the acreage less, the field for exploitation would be less. As it is, it invites the building of railroads and highways and the extension of power lines and other forms of transportation and communication. It creates a demand instead of becoming a "burden" to the people.

Some plantings of beans are already under way. A great many seed beds are up. Mr. Goff has about three acres of beans on E. J. Wilcox's farm in Eagle River about 2 to 6 inches high now, that should be ready to ship by early October. There are others who will have early beans. Some fall corn planted this summer is about ready to gather, some of it planted on land that was in crop this spring.

Plans now underway provide for about 200 acres to spring crops of vegetables, irrespective of whether government aid is received. The bulk of the spring crop will be beans and tomatoes, and, again, about half of the number planted to corn when the spring crop of vegetables is off.

Land Values Rest on Use

land, Maine, with a peanut plantation on Hillsboro canal in the middle Glades evolved and employs machines adapted to its particular needs which lower the costs of old-time methods. A company headed by E. R. Graham operating the former Pennsylvania Sugar Company land on Miami canal has installed a canning plant in which new methods are successfully employed. Mr. Graham has also evolved cultural and feeding methods that improve upon the old practices.

These are evidences that the Everglades, free from the trammels of tradition, will make its way regardless of the state of agriculture elsewhere in the United States; and have been found for this land and it is use that gives value, and price is based upon value. The price was low when the value was uncertain, and the price must increase on these demonstrations of utility.

There is a great deal of Everglades land—there are millions of acres of it, a great supply, and ordinarily the abundance of supply would tend to limit the price, but it is more likely that this fact of the existence of a vast expanse of land will tend to create and sustain values.

The Brown Company has 70,000 acres of Everglades land; that is equal to 1,700 tracts of 40 acres each, capable of subsisting a population of 10,000 people, but thanks to the existence of millions of acres of Everglades lands, this possible population is not excluded.

LETTERS

St. Augustine, Aug. 22, 1920.

Editor, The Everglades News.
Mr. Rodenbaugh has talked with me concerning the interesting and attractive map which you prepared on the upper Everglades and the Lake Okeechobee region, as published in the Palm Beach Post of August 18. He has been so much impressed with it that he has asked me to write you and see if it would not be possible for you to furnish about one-half dozen copies of the map. It was his thought that, possibly, you could run off a few copies which we could use to give good advantage.

You are to be congratulated on this splendid piece of work.

With kindest regards, believe me,

Very truly yours,
HAROLD COLLEGE, Manager,
Public Relations Bureau.

New Orleans, Aug. 21, 1920.

Editor, Everglades News.
I am in receipt of a copy of your paper of August 10th which I have read with a great deal of interest.

I note that you have been elected president of the club which will soon be converted into a Rotary Club and I wish to congratulate you on this honor. I being a Rotary Rotarian of the club of New Orleans and knowing what good work they do in this section, I know they will do lots of good work in your section. The Rotary motto of "He profits most who serves best" is one that I have always tried to live up to.

Wishing you every success in the new Rotary Club, I am,

Rotarily yours,
